The reads that make perhaps the best shewing for September are those in the South and Southwest. These roads, as a rule, had quite large gains a year ago, and the additional gains which they report this year are the more notworthy for that yearen. Chief among them is the Louisville and Nashville, which records an increase of $199,638, after having gained $165,000 in 1852. The East Tomessee gains $46,000 in addition to the $24,000 gained in 1852, and the Norfolk and Western gains $40,000, after having gained $12,000. Both these latter roads have Increased their mileage this year. The cotton market was very unsettled in the early part of the week on account of the variance of opinions of sellers and buyers for export, the latter adhering to the position that damages to the crop had been greatly exaggerated. To this they added the mathematical demonstration that Liverpool to admit of a justifiable margin for the exporter, and that one must come down or the exporter, and that one must come down or the other go up before they could "do business." In view of the heavy surplus held by Liverpool or the advance when there was no risk as to be advance when there was no risk as to he advance when there was no risk as to latter part of the week Liverpool made advances that placed the relative values of that and the New York market more satisfactory to exporters, and they took liberally of the transactions of the vork when there was uncertainty.
